Art Unit: 1774

Claims 1, 3 and 6-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kojima et al. (4830911) and further in view of Sugiyama et al. (6,773,770) for reasons of record and for reasons given below.

1. Applicant's arguments filed January 5, 2007 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive with respect to the art rejections. Applicants' argument was persuasive in overcoming the rejection under 35 USC 112. With respect to the rejection over the prior art, the examiner has reevaluated applicants' remarks and Declaration. Contrary to these arguments, the examiner has not found the polymer used in Comparative Example 3 of the specification and Declaration and that of Example 4 of Kojima et al. to be the same polymer. The polymer of Comparative Example 3 appears to be the polymer of Synthesis Example 8. Because this polymer has 5.2 parts styrene, its ratio of  $m$  to  $n$  would be about 20:1 while the ratio in the reference would be 9:1 or 1:9 (Polymer D of the reference seems to mistakenly use  $n$  for both units of the polymer so it is unclear which ratio is correct). This difference would result in a significantly different polymer than one in which the  $m$  to  $n$  ratio is almost 20:1. Therefore, it is unclear why applicants believe these examples to concern the same polymer clarification is requested.

2. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
